1. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

2. Claims 2-4 are provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 9-11 of copending Application No. 10/191,572. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the claims in the present application include a mesh, a coupling means coupled or fixed at one end to the mesh and having a recess in the other end; a curved needle element where the recess in the coupling means is sized to receive the distal end of the needle element to couple the device together. While the claims in 10/191,572 include the same limitations, they use only slightly different language, they both claim a mesh; but while the present claims recite a coupling means (having a recess) and a needle element for connecting to the coupling means via the recess, the claims in '572 use language having a needle element (or coupling means) and a needle guide (or needle element) where the needle element has a bore (or recess) to connect with the distal end of the needle guide. Claims 3 of the present application and claim 11 of '572 also are the same except for reciting a "protrusion" vs. a "protruding element".

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

3. Claims 2 and 4 are provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 2 of copending Application No. 10/359,406. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the claims differ in the number of attachment strips or ends of the mesh that are used to connect the mesh to the body, the present application has one coupling means attached to each end of the mesh, while '406 has two coupling means (or attachment strips) attached to each end of the mesh.
